On February 14, the UAP Qatar Chapter and PPOQ hosted an engaging Career Student Simulation Workshop (CSSW) for Grade 12 students at PSD, coinciding with Valentine's Day. The event provided a unique opportunity for students to learn from accomplished architects about various aspects of architecture. Arch. Shaira Navarro, an alumna of PSD, led a session on Urban Planning and Tropical Design, focusing on the importance of designing spaces that meet the needs of growing populations while addressing climate and environmental considerations. Arch. Ricardo Sesbreno discussed the Theory of Architecture, highlighting the philosophical foundations of the field and how form, function, and context shape architectural design. Arch. Melanie Ramos shared insights on Building Design and Construction Law, explaining the legal aspects architects must consider in their work.

Throughout the day, students had the chance to ask questions, gain practical advice, and connect their learning with real-world experiences. They also shared insights from a previous UAP General Meeting Assembly, where they interviewed professional architects. The event inspired the students to explore architecture further and deepened their desire to pursue a career in the field. Overall, the workshop blended theory, practical knowledge, and personal experiences, providing a strong foundation for the students' future careers.
